Bush Daisy

Today on Gardening in a Minute: Bush Daisy.

The cheerful, bright yellow flowers of bush daisies are produced in great numbers throughout the year. The loose, rounded form makes a colorful small shrub, or works well in mass plantings, mixed flower borders and containers. It can grow up to three feet tall and four feet wide.

Bush daisies will grow in most soils and do best in full sun. They are moderately drought tolerant, but should be kept watered during dry times for maximum flowering.

During cold snaps, they will die to the ground, but will re-emerge in spring.

In the right location and with an occasional light pruning, bush daisies form a striking mound of brilliant yellow flowers that seem to float above the shiny green foliage. In south Florida they bloom nearly year-round.

For more information about bush daisies and many other gardening topics, contact your county Extension office or visit Gardening in a Minute dot com.

Gardening in a Minute is a production of the University of Florida’s Center for Landscape Conservation and Ecology, IFAS Extension, and WUFT-FM.