CUT FLOWERS

1

Remove leaves or blossoms that will end up underwater. Then, cut one-half to one inch off the stems with a sharp, clean knife.

2

Place the flowers in a clean vase filled with fresh water and, if you have it, flower preservatives. Do not add sugar, as it will bring bacteria and clog the stems.

3

If the water turns yellow and cloudy, wash the vase with soapy water and add fresh water with flower preservatives.

4

Re-cut and rinse the stems before placing them back into the container.

5

Keep the flowers away from heating and air-conditioning vents, and from direct sunlight.
